INTRODUCTION

The network of MEDIA Desks and Antennae in Europe is delighted to publish the second edition of the Drama Directory, a Guide to European TV Drama Commissioning Editors and Buyers.

We had become aware of an information gap in this area in our work with clients, in particular with applicants for the TV Broadcasting support scheme. We thought the best way to address this was to make use of our own network, with each MEDIA Desk providing information on TV Channels in its own territory. It has proved to be a rewarding collaboration – a true European co-production.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the participating Broadcasters for their generosity in providing the information contained in this Directory, the European Audiovisual Observatory for allowing us to use information from the MAVISE database and the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland for sponsoring this publication.

This directory is complementary to all market and database initiatives funded by MEDIA with the aim to achieve a transparent single market for all Audiovisual programmes in Europe. Examples of other MEDIA publications include the Training and Networks guide and the Markets and Networks Guide which can be downloaded from the MEDIA website.

We hope the Drama Directory will continue to be a useful resource for Television Drama Producers and Broadcasters alike. We welcome your feedback and suggestions for future editions.

THE MEDIA DESKS AND ANTENNAE

AUSTRIA

The most important broadcaster in Austria is still the public service ORF, which has gradually been losing market share since the introduction of private television. The channels ORF1 and ORF2 had a combined average market share of 37% in 2010 (down almost 10% since 2006). ORF2 is still the most popular channel, with 22.5% of viewers on average. German television is also popular in Austria. The main German private channels have Austrian versions, with a combined audience share in 2010 of more than 25% (the most important of these being RTL Österreich, Sat1 Österreich and ProSieben Austria). German public service channels had a combined audience share of more than 10%. The main private channel is ATV (launched in 2003) with an audience share of 3.4% in 2010. More private channels have recently been launched: Austria 9 TV, (Burda Verlag) in 2007; and Puls 4 (ProSiebenSat.1 Media AG) in 2008. In 2009 Salzburg TV was rebranded as Servus TV and became a national channel. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide/ AGTT / GfK Teletest).

Following an investigation completed by the European Commission in 2009 regarding the financing and remit of the public broadcaster ORF, a new media law was passed in July 2010. The regulatory authority KommAustria, was given responsibility for legal supervision of the public service broadcaster (ORF). The financing of the ORF should follow EU standards regarding commercial and non-commercial activities, and a clear public service remit of the broadcaster should be developed. New services have to undergo a “public interest test”.

BELGIUM

The three Communities (Flemish, French and German-speaking) each have responsibility for audiovisual communication and constitute separate markets, the common feature being the fact that all three markets have been extensively cabled for three decades and are thus able to receive the channels of neighbouring countries. They each have their own systems of regulating the audiovisual media and their own public service broadcasters, namely the VRT, the RTBF and the BRF respectively.

The main players in the Flemish Community are VRT, which operates the public channels Één, Ketnet and Canvas, and VMMA (Vlaamse Media Maatschappij), which runs the channels VTM, 2BE, Anne, Jim and vtmKzoom.

Één (VRT) continues to dominate the market, with a steadily rising daily audience share, which reached 33% in 2010 (compared with 28.7% in 2006). Behind Één in audience terms are the channel VTM (20.4%) and the second public channel Ketnet/Canvas (children's programmes during the day and cultural programmes in the evening), followed by VT4 and 2BE. The rest of the market is split between a number of special interest channels set up in the Flemish Community as well as French and Dutch language channels.

In the French Community, the main operators of television channels are, apart from RTBF (La Une, La Deux and La Trois), the RTL group, with its three channels RTL-TVI, Club RTL and Plug RTL that target Belgium but operate under Luxembourg law, and the AB group (AB3, AB4 and AB Shopping). RTBF has significantly modified its range of channels in 2010: it ceased broadcasting its international channel RTBF Sat in February, launched HD versions of its three channels in May and revamped the programming line-up of La Trois in September.

RTL-TVI continues to dominate the market with a 21.5% daily audience (and a prime time market share of 28.8%). The second most important Belgian channel is La Une (RTBF), with a 14.5% market share. The other Belgian channels have a combined share of less than 5% (Club RTL, La Deux, AB3, etc) and a significant number of viewers still turn to the French channels, which command about a third of the audience share. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / CIM / GfK Audimetric SA)

In the German-speaking Community, the majority of the population (about 74 000 inhabitants) choose to watch the German television channels.

Almost 100% of Belgian households subscribe to pay-TV, this mainly being due to the extent of the country's cable network.

CYPRUS

The broadcasting market in Cyprus is dominated by the channels of the public service broadcaster CYBC (RIK1, RIK2, RIK HD and RIK Sat), which had a combined audience share of 19.7% in 2010, and four national private channels: Sigma, ANT1, Mega and Plus TV, who all registered an increased audience share in 2010 (21.3%, 20.7%, 14.3% and 4.1% respectively). (audience data source : Eurodata TV Worldwide / AGB Nielsen Media Research Cyprus )

As well as ANT1 and Mega, a new sister channel of a Greek commercial station was launched in 2011 (Mad Cyprus) and another is expected by the end of 2011, with the free terrestrial channel Star Channel Cyprus due to replace terrestrial pay-TV channel Alfa TV, which was taken off the airwaves in summer 2011.

The transition to DTT has particularly affected the local television landscape in Cyprus. In the absence of a local DTT network, several local stations have begun to broadcast nationally, in some cases with a revised programme schedule, while others have had to cease broadcasting either temporarily or permanently.

Analogue terrestrial signals were switched off on 1 July 2011, after a short transitional period.

CYPRUS

CZECH REPUBLIC

In the Czech Republic, the television market continues to be dominated by the private channel Nova TV (Central European Media Enterprises), which in 2010 had a market share of 28.9 % (down 13 % since 2006). The public service broadcaster Czech Television, had a total market share of 27 % thanks to the growth of CT24 and CT4. In third place is the private channel Prima TV (Modern Times Group), which had a share in 2011 of 17.4% (down from 20.2% in 2006). (Audience data source: Eurodata TV / ATO / Mediaresearch)

All the main operators have launched additional channels over the past 3-4 years. The Nova TV family channels include Nova Sport and Nova Cinema and the female oriented channel Fanda launched in 2012. The public service broadcaster has a sport and a news channel (CT 4 Sport and CT 24), and has also launched several HD channels. Prima TV also has two entertainment channels: Prima Cool targeting men, and Prima Love, which targets women. A new national commercial channel TV Pětka was launched in October 2012. Analogue terrestrial television was switched off in June 2012. Digital Terrestrial Television is the most important distribution platform in the Czech Republic serving more than 30% of homes. IPTV has taken off in the Czech Republic with a total of 5 competing offers.

On 6 September 2011 the Parliament of the Czech Republic adopted amendments to audiovisual legislation that concern advertising and teleshopping in public television. From January 2012 advertising was removed from the channels CT1 and CT24 (News). The other channels will continue to have advertising but the time allocated to advertising on CT2 and CT4 should not exceed 0,5% of the daily broadcasting time.

DENMARK

The Danish market is the only one in Europe in which public channels, operated by the two public broadcasters, DR and TV2, still attract more than half of average daily audiences. The TV2 channel continues to dominate the market (28.1% of daily audiences in 2010), followed by DR1 (19.2%). The two main public channels therefore account for 47.2% of average daily audiences in 2010 (61.9% in 2006). Despite the creation of various special-interest channels, the entire public sector saw its total audience drop from 72.4% in 2006 to 62.9% in 2010. The most popular private channel is TV3 (Swedish MTG group), with a steady daily market share of 5%. The other main private channels are TV3+ (MTG group, 3.4% daily audience share) and Kanal 5 (Pro-SiebenSat.1 Media AG), whose daily audience share grew from 2.9% in 2009 to 3.4% in 2010. (Audience Data Source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / Gallup TV meter)

The Danish public authorities decided to privatise TV2 in May 2003, but implementation of this decision was delayed after questions were raised concerning the financing of the broadcaster. In May 2004, the European Commission concluded that TV2 had received illegal public funding and demanded that it pay back EUR 84.4 million to the Danish authorities. An appeal was lodged against the recapitalisation plan and the Court of First Instance of the European Communities set aside the Commission's decision in its judgment of 22 October 2008. In spring 2008, the Ministry of Culture announced that emergency aid would be provided to stabilise TV2, which is heavily in debt. This aid, amounting to EUR 67 million, was approved by the European Commission in August 2008. Finally, in January 2009 the government published a plan aimed at partially transforming TV2 into a pay-TV channel from 2012.

FINLAND

Finland is one of Europe's most advanced countries in terms of digital broadcasting: analogue terrestrial signals were switched off in 2007 and cable television transmissions have also been fully digitised since 2008. Finland is now turning to second generation digital terrestrial television (DVB-T2). However, these changes have not radically altered the balance in the broadcasting market, where the main players remain the public group YLE (YLE TV1, YLE TV2, YLE Teema and Swedish-language channel YLE FST5), the Finnish private media group Sanoma (Nelonen, JIM, LIV) and Swedish group Bonnier (MTV3, Sub and Nordic Canal+ pay-TV channels).

The public broadcasting group YLE regained some ground in 2010 and had an audience market share of 45.1%. In particular, YLE TV1 stabilised its daily audience market share at 21.6%, whilst YLE TV2 gained more than a percentage point to return to 19.4%. The audience of the first private channel, MTV3, has continued to decline reaching 21.5%, which is a loss of nearly 8% since 2006. (Audience Data Source: EurodataTV Worldwide/Finnpanel)

The Finnish multi-channel distribution market continues to be dominated by cable services. Although there are still more than 20 active operators, the market is becoming more concentrated. In particular, in July 2010, DNA took control of the cable activities of Sanoma Television, i.e. its Welho package.

Due to the popularity of cable television in Finland, satellite and IPTV packages are struggling to break through.

MTV MEDIA represents CANAL+ pay-TV services in Finland. MTV MEDIA (MTV Oy) is owned by Nordic Broadcasting Oy, which is owned by the Swedish publisher Bonnier AB. The MTV3 Channel Package was launched in November 2006. MTV MEDIA has been representing the CANAL+ pay-TV Services since 2009.

FRANCE

The channel TF1 still has the largest audience share but only had a daily audience share of 24.5% in 2010, which was 7.1 percentage points lower than in 2006. This was the third consecutive year in which the private channel's daily audience was below 30%. In second and third place respectively were the two public channels France 2 (16.1%) and France 3 (10.7%), both of which are also experiencing a steady decline in their audiences. In particular, France 3 is followed close behind by M6 (10.4%). Following these, eleven channels have audience market shares of between 1 and 4%. These include a number of new free-to-air DTT channels, such as TMC (TF1 Group) and W9 (RTL), which hold market shares comparable to those of the incumbent terrestrial channels, such as Canal+, France 5 and Arte. The new free-to-air DTT channels had a combined daily audience share of 19.7% in 2010, compared with 15.2% in 2009 and 11.1% in 2008. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / Médiamétrie / Médiamat).

The Canal+ group's acquisition of the TPS package in 2007 was challenged in September 2011 by the Competition Authority, which withdrew its decision to allow the merger and fined Canal+ 30 million euros, stating that the company had not met the commitments it had entered into at the time (especially with regard to making channels available to third-party distributors). In addition, Canal+ and Orange, which were for a long time locked in a dispute about rights and channel exclusivity, announced they had reached an agreement in July 2011 on the acquisition by Canal+ of a 33.33% stake in Orange Cinéma Séries, the package that groups together Orange's five premium cinema and fiction channels.

The reform of public audiovisual services, which began in 2008, has continued to generate debate in France. The public broadcasters were combined into a single company (France Télévisions) on 1 January 2010.

GERMANY

The television market in Germany is one of the largest in Europe and is also very competitive. More than 37 million households had a TV set at the end of 2010 in Germany, of which 50.2% received television by cable and 44.7% by satellite. The number of households with access to digital television had reached almost 68% by June 2011, according to the figures published by the ALM (Association of State Media Authorities).

Regarding audience share, the public service channels remain strong. The two national public service channels (ARD and ZDF) had a combined share of 25.9% in 2010 (down from 27.8% in 2006). For the first time RTL moved ahead of ARD (Das Erste) in 2010 to become the most popular channel, although only leading by a small margin (a difference of 0.4%). (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / AGF / GfK)

Cable represents the most common mode of television distribution, and the digitisation of the network reached almost 43% by July 2011. The sector has experienced major consolidation in the last few years. There are now just four major operators. Kabel Deutschland, the country's leading cable operator, had 8.7 million subscribers in June 2011.

Changes to media legislation were introduced in the 15th amendment to the German Inter-State Broadcasting Treaty signed in December 2010. This addressed a reform of the collection of the licence fee for the public service broadcaster. The Prime Ministers of the German states agreed in June 2010 on a proposal that would impose a charge per household (household tax) rather than a charge per device that can receive broadcast signals. The changes are likely to be implemented from 2013. Future amendments to the Inter-State broadcasting Treaty will address protection of minors, and media concentration.

ICELAND

All along since the establishment of Icelandic TV in 1966 the major characteristics of the programming is its high percentage of foreign origin. Iceland is a small language community and local production is far more expensive than the price of foreign material. However, local production has developed, both in numbers and quality. In 20 years, 1995-2008, the three main channels, RUV, Stöd 2 and Skjártinn, almost doubled their production time, from 1.800 hours in 1995 up to 3.500 hours in 2008. The combined local productions remained around 25% of the transmissions.

At present there are ten national channels. New technology, the arrival of specialized channels and not least condensation in the marketplace make this possible. Icelandic channels with some own programming at the end of year 2009 were as follows. (Years of founding in parenthesis): RUV Sjónvarp (1966), Stöd 2 (1986), Omega (1992), Stöd 2 Sport (1995), N4 (1997), Stöd 2 Bíó (1998), Stöd 2 Extra (1998), Skjár 1 (1998), ÍNN (2007), Nova TV (2008).

The archrivals on the market are RUV and Stöd 2. General channels with varied programmes are RUV, Stöd 2 and Skjár 1. The other seven are more or less specialized channels that mostly try to care for the interests of certain audience groups. All but one are transmitted from Reykjavík, the capital of Iceland. N4 is based in Akureyri, "the capital of the North".

Only four years after the dawn of digital transmissions in Iceland late 2005, six of every ten households in the country had access to a digital receiver. Audiences can tune in to lots of foreign television channels distributed by seven different companies, mostly telecoms, either through cable or antenna. Since 2005 video on demand (VoD) has been offered by some of the telecoms.

Both of these images are from The Cliff (Hamarinn), 2009. Production Company: Pegasus.

IRELAND

In Ireland the national public service broadcaster remains the strongest player in the TV market while British channels and companies continue to play an important role. The public service channels, RTÉ 1 and RTÉ 2, had a combined market share of 33.1% in 2010 (almost 5% less than in 2006). The private channel, TV3 (launched in 1998) had a 12.4% market share, and is now the second most popular channel. The other two national Irish broadcasters are the public service Irish language channel TG4, and the entertainment channel 3e (owned by TV3). The five most popular UK channels are ranked in the following order: BBC1, UTV, S4C, BBC2, and Sky 1 (with a combined share of 15.1% in 2010). With the launch of DTT services, the public service broadcaster has also launched additional digital channels (Audience data source: Eurodata TV / AGB Nielsen Media Research)

The introduction of DTT in Ireland was long delayed but is finally under way since the end of 2010. The Broadcasting Authority of Ireland announced in August 2010 that commercial DTT has been ruled out for the time being, but the tender for the Multiplexes may be re-launched in 2013 after switch-off. The multiplexes of the PSB RTÉ were launched in October 2010 as a trial, with the full service "Saorview" launched in May 2011. The total offer now includes the channels RTÉ 1, RTÉ 2, TV3, 3e, TG4, and RTÉ News Now. New services launched by the PSB are the following: RTÉjr (children) RTÉ One + 1, RTÉ Aertel Digital (teletext), and a trial HD service. Switch-off is planned for October 2012.

The Broadcasting Act of 2009 consolidated all previous broadcasting legislation. The Act also established the new broadcasting regulatory authority (the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland – BAI, which merged the Broadcasting Commission of Ireland (BCI) and Broadcasting Complaints Commission (BCC). The BAI was officially launched in October 2009 and now also has responsibility for the regulation of public service broadcasters in Ireland.

ITALY

SOURCE: MAVISE Database – a database provided by the European Audiovisual Observatory on behalf of the DG Communication of the European Commission.

Italy's two most watched channels are still RAI Uno, the first public channel, and the private channel Canale 5 (Mediaset), which had daily audience market shares of 20.7 and 18.8% respectively in 2010. RAI broadcasts more than twenty channels in Italy and five international channels. In May 2010, it absorbed its subsidiary Raisat and the Raisat channels were all renamed. In 2010, all the RAI channels regained a 0.6% market share while the three general entertainment channels of the Mediaset group (Canale 5, Italia 1 and Rete 4) lost 2.7%. Apart from the seventh terrestrial analogue channel La 7, with a stable market share of around 3%, and the children's channel Boing TV (Mediaset group), no channel has a daily audience share of more than 1% in Italy. The incumbent terrestrial general-interest channels still pull in nearly 75% of viewers. (Audience data source : Eurodata TV Worldwide / Auditel / AGB Nielsen Media Research Italy).

This concentration of audience share is all the more surprising in Italy as the country has a large number of channels: there are more than 400 national and nearly 600 regional and local channels. The leading channel operators are the public service broadcaster RAI and the private groups Mediaset and News Corporation, whose subsidiary Sky Italia became the leading Italian television group by operating revenue in 2010.

The Mediaset group controls 42 Italian channels (including one international channel). It also has assets in Spain: in addition to the channel Telecinco, it took control of Cuatro in 2010 and acquired a 22% stake in the satellite operator Digital+. In Tunisia, it has a stake in the channel Nessma TV.

Through its subsidiaries Sky Italia and Fox Italia, News Corporation operates more than 90 channels in Italy, 25 of them targeting other countries. The subsidiary Fox International also broadcasts channels to Germany, Benelux and the Baltic countries.

NETHERLANDS

The most important players in the Dutch market are the public broadcasters, with the national channels Ned 1, Ned 2, Ned 3, and all the digital channels grouped together under the Ned 24 banner, as well as the RTL group, whose channels RTL 4, RTL 5, RTL 7, RTL 8 and RTL Lounge are transmitted under Luxembourg law. The third provider, SBS Broadcasting (NET 5, SBS 6 and Veronica), was sold by ProSiebenSat.1 Media AG in May 2011 to Joop de Mol's Talpa Media group, which is associated with the Finnish group Sanoma.

In 2010, the daily audience share of Ned 1 rose by 1.5%, thus enabling the channel to reach 21.5%, which was higher than the figure posted in 2008. Following the public channel in audience share terms are the private channels RTL4 and SBS6 with 14.4 and 10% respectively. Their market shares have actually risen in the past two years. The two other public channels (Ned 2 and Ned 3) each have a daily share of slightly under 7%, while the figure for the four private channels - NET 5, RTL 7, RTL 5 and Veronica - is between 3 and 5%. Eight other channels have a daily audience of between 1 and 2%. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / Stichting Kijkeronderzoek).

The Dutch public service broadcasting system is made up of some twenty national and 350 local broadcasters. On 16 December 2010 the General Court of the European Union handed down a decision in an action for annulment brought by the Netherlands and the Dutch Broadcasting Foundation - NOS, a public service broadcaster, regarding state aid for the latter. After receiving complaints by several Dutch commercial broadcasters, the Commission initiated an investigation regarding the funding of public service broadcasters in the Netherlands. It concluded EUR 76.327 million, plus interest should be repaid by NOS.

NORWAY

The audience of the three public channels of the group NRK increased their share in 2009, with a daily audience share of 39.1% versus 37.5% in 2008. Nonetheless, the channel NRK1, with 31.1% was ahead of its private competitors. TV 2 had a 21.3% market share, with TVNorge (ProSiebenSat 1 Media AG) trailing behind with 7.1% and TV3 (Modern Times Group) with 6.1%.

TV3 (MTG), Viasat (MTG) and the Voice TV (ProSiebenSat 1 Media AG) are established in the UK, requiring them to comply with the Television without Frontiers Directive but not with specific provisions under Norwegian legislation, particularly in respect of programming and advertising.

Several new channels emerged in the Norwegian market in 2008 and 2009. For example, the satellite TV Distributor Viasat (MTG) has restructured its sports channels package, closing down Viasat Sport and Viasat Motor on the Norwegian market. The two main private channels TVNorge and TV 2 launched HD versions in October 2008 and June 2009 respectively. Finally, Frikanalen, which was launched in October 2008, started broadcasting on the national digital terrestrial television network in 2009. This is an open, non-commercial channel and is owned by around 60 non-governmental organisations. Pay-TV has a very high penetration rate in the Norwegian market, Just under half of all households subscribe to a cable television service. In a country where 73% of homes have broadband Internet access, the IPTV sector is developing apace and there were six competing services in 2009.

POLAND

The most important free-to-air transmission players are still the public group TVP and the two private groups TVN (ITI group) and Polsat. The public channel TVP1 still heads the daily audience figures, with a 19.4% market share (compared with 24% in 2006). TVP2, the second public channel, lost more than 5% of its market share between 2006 and 2010. The two main private channels, TVN and Polsat, have seen their audiences dwindle: their market share in 2010 was 15.2% and 13.8% respectively (against 16.7% and 16.1% in 2006). (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / AGB Nielsen Media Research).

Following these four channels, there were six that commanded between 1 and 5% of the audience share. The fragmentation of the audience is encouraging the most important groups, which see the audience of their main channels shrinking, to increase the number of special interest channels. For example in 2011, TVP has 9 national channels and 16 regional services, TVN directly provides 10 channels (and the ITI group controls 17), the group Polsat Cyfrowy has 14, as does the Canal+ Cyfrowy group (a subsidiary of the French group Vivendi). These groups are continuing to announce the establishment of new special interest channels.

After three years of discussions, an act amending the Broadcasting and Licence Fees was finally passed in August 2010.

Polsat is a television broadcaster-commercial station buying movies for all rights. The channel is also available to watch in Sweden. It is active 168 hours per week and free to watch. # SPAIN

Hit by the economic crisis, the Spanish audiovisual market has undergone considerable change: for example, 2008 and 2009 saw developments in TV audience rankings, the reform of RTVE, a merger between Cuatro and Telecinco, a rapid increase in the number of special-interest channels, and the switchoff of analogue terrestrial transmissions.

The public channel TVE La Primera, which led the market in 2009 with a 16.4% daily audience share, confirmed this position in 2010 with a 16% share. It therefore overtook Telecinco, a private channel owned by the Italian Mediaset group, , the market share of which has suffered a drop of more than six percentage points since 2006 and is now only 14.6%. Antena 3, controlled by the Planeta de Agostini and Bertelsmann groups, remained in third position but has also lost more than seven percentage points since 2006 and has seen its market share fall to 11.7%. Next, the two most recent additions to the Spanish analogue terrestrial landscape continued to establish themselves: Cuatro (which replaced Canal+ in 2005) with 7% and La Sexta (created by a Spanish-Mexican consortium in 2006) with 6.6%. TVE La 2 followed with a 3.1% daily audience share. The public television channels of the Autonomous Communities also recorded a significant decline: their total market share fell from 15.4% in 2006 to 11.2% in 2010. This decline in the incumbent channels can be explained by the rapid increase in the number of special-interest channels. The audience share of such channels, which was negligible in 2006, may now exceed 2%, as in the case of Antena.Neox or the Disney Channel. (Audience data sources: Eurodata TV Worldwide / Kantar Media)

In spring 2010, a new general law on audiovisual communications was adopted. Debated for six years, its provisions include the creation of a national regulatory authority, the Consejo Estatal de Medios Audiovisuales. This body was set up by a decree of 3 June 2011 but the Partido Popular has announced its intention to abolish it if it won the November 2011 parliamentary elections.

SWEDEN

The main players in the Swedish broadcasting market are public broadcaster SVT, private Swedish groups Bonnier (TV4 and Nordic Canal+ channels) and Modern Times Group – MTG (TV3, TV6, TV8, TV1000 and Viasat channels, some of which are broadcast from the United Kingdom), and the German group ProSiebenSat.1 Media AG, whose channels Kanal 5 and Kanal 9 are also transmitted from the United Kingdom.

In 2009, the public channel SVT1 regained its position as the most watched channel in Sweden, with an increased daily audience share of 20.9%, which it increased even further in 2010 (23.2%), ahead of TV4 (Bonnier), which remained below the 20% mark (19.2%) in 2010. SVT2, Sweden's second public channel, dropped to 6.9% (a market share that has virtually been halved in the space of four years) and lost third place in 2009 to TV3 (MTG) with 8.1%. It is followed by Kanal 5 (ProSiebenSat.1 Media AG) and TV6 (MTG), two established channels, and TV3, broadcast from the United Kingdom

The combined audience share of these six main channels was only 69.4% in 2010, compared to almost 80% four years earlier. Due to this audience fragmentation, the broadcasting groups have increased their range of specialist channels. In terms of total audience share per group, the six SVT channels saw their market share fall from 39.3% in 2006 to 35.2% in 2010, in contrast to the nine TV4 channels, whose share rose from 26% to 31% in 2010. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / MMS Mediämätning | Skandinavien AB)

The main players in the distribution market remain the Swedish groups MTG, TeliaSonera and Teracom, as well as cable operator Com Hem and the Norwegian Telenor group.

The new Radio and Television Act entered into force on 1 August 2010, transposing the Audiovisual Media Services Directive (2007). The Act defines and regulates sponsorship, advertising and product placement. It also creates a new audiovisual regulatory body, Myndigheten för radio och tv (Swedish audiovisual authority), which replaces the radio and television authority (Radio-och TV-Verket, RTVV) and the Swedish audiovisual commission (Granskningsnämnden för radio och TV, GRN)

SWITZERLAND

Source: European Audiovisual Observatory, Mavise database on TV and on-demand audiovisual services and companies in Europe.

Switzerland is a federation made up of 26 cantons and has four national languages: French, German, Italian and Romansch. This is reflected in the organisation of the audiovisual landscape, with French, German and Italian channels having a major presence on the Swiss market.

However, the different language markets are still dominated by the public channels. The public service broadcaster SRG SSR idée suisse provides through its seven operating units seven television channels (three in German, two in French and two in Italian) and seventeen radio stations.

RSI is part of the group SRG SSR, the Swiss public broadcaster. The Italian unit operates two channels: LA 1 and LA 2. LA 1 is a full service channel aimed at a broad audience. LA 2 is a complementary channel with a focus on sport. There are also children's programs and repeats of news programs from LA 1. The drama editorial line looks for strong and realistic fiction stories. RSI also participates in foreign productions involving a Swiss co-producer within the "Pacte", an agreement aiming to support independent productions, both for cinema and television.

UNITED KINGDOM

The public service channel BBC1 remains the most popular in the UK (with an audience share in 2010 of 20.8%, just 2% down from 2006), followed by ITV1 (16.6%). The UK television market is also one of the largest in Europe with an extensive number of national thematic channels and also many channels that are targeting other countries. This includes a very large number of Arabic, Asian and Turkish channels with an international focus that are licensed in the UK. (Audience data source: Eurodata TV Worldwide / BARB / TNS UK)

In recent years, there have been significant changes to the media ownership landscape. In 2010, the RTL Group sold the Channel Five Group to the UK company Northern & Shell (involved in publishing, Express Newspapers, and adult channels). At the same time Virgin Media began moving out of the broadcasting sector in order to focus on its distribution business. In June 2010, Virgin Media sold Virgin Media Television to BSkyB (including the Bravo, Challenge, Living, and Trouble brands). The company was re-branded as the Living TV Group. The last broadcasting interests of the company: 50% share in the UKTV channels, a joint-venture with the BBC Worldwide, were sold to the US company Scripps Networks in August 2011. Finally, in 2011 ITV PLC took over Channel Television, the company with the channel 3 licence for the Channel Islands. Aside from STV and UTV, ITV PLC now holds all the channel 3 licences.

In 2010 News Corporation announced its intention to increase its ownership of BSkyB (from 39% to 100%). However, following the phone-hacking scandal and pressure from parliament the bid was eventually withdrawn. Ofcom, following a request of the Culture Minister, launched a consultation in October 2011 in order to review ownership and plurality in the UK media.

Analogue switch-off is well under way in the UK and the planned completion date is October 2012. HD channels are being made available in areas in line with their switch-off of analogue services. Currently this includes BBC HD, ITV1 HD, Channel 4 HD, 5aC HD, STV HD, (and from 2012 also FIVE HD)

UKTV is a major industry player and one of the most important and successful multi-channel providers in the UK. Formed in 1997, it is an independent commercial joint venture, between Virgin Media and BBC Worldwide, the commercial arm of the BBC.
